Definition(s) of Done

Discussions on Discord about what to complete. We then test it based on what we agreed on was done. Finally, after testing, we can mark a task as done.

For user stories, the definition of done is once the user would be able to complete the functionality of the given user story. All tasks have to be completed. We have to also document functions and what they are doing. Everyone has to look through the user stories to make sure their functionality is complete.

For sprint tasks, the definition of done is when the functionality of a task is bug free and does what it is supposed to be done. It also has to be commented on and/or explained properly during the scrum meetings. It has to be tested formally/informally to ensure it works.
